D. C. JEWS PREPARE FOR $60,000 DRIVE

As the first move in a $60,000 drive to secure funds for the aid of Jewish war sufferers in Europe, teams of campaign workers will be organized at a local Jewish relief committee meeting tomorrow morning at the Town and Country Club.

Simon Lyon, chairman of the local committee, of the American Jewish War Relief Committee, this morning stated that he had no doubt but that Washington would not only exceed the quota assigned, but that the figures would be doubled or tripled.

December 25-30 Chosen.

The meeting will be called to order at 10:30, and plans will be speedily formulated for this drive. The tentative dates of December 25-30 have already been set.

So appealing are the dispatches from war-ridden Europe, that the drive probably will be boosted, not only by Jews, but by members of every faith as last year.

Jacob Billikopf, executive director of the American Jewish Relief Committee, who has given first impetus to this successful campaign, will be present at the meeting, to give the workers the benefit of his experience in previous campaigns.

Mr. Billikopf, it is thought, will endeavor to impress upon the workers the need for the laying of a few well-laid plans immediately if they would gain their goal in the short time allotted.

15 Millions This Year.

Louis Marshall, chairman of the national executive committee, has written to this city asking R. E. H. Lyon to serve with him in the East.

"We raised ten million dollars last year," Mr. Marshall stated in his letter, "but fifteen million will be the minimum for 1918. To accomplish this goal, Washington must, and undoubtedly will, again do its generous bit."

FAMOUS "STILL ALARM"

AT LOEW'S COLUMBIA

Turning back the pages of theatrical history to the period in the early eighties when melodrama was in its heyday, Loew's Columbia and other lesser lights were commanding packed audiences there dawning a new era for this type of play when "The Still Alarm" made its appearance. This magnificent production was an instant success because the author, Joseph Arthur, embodied in its story the real heart throbs of heroism and action, wonders climaxed by a story of love and adventure that touched the sympathies of even the critics of the time.

"The Still Alarm" played to packed houses from coast to coast until it became the recognized greatest success of the age.

Small wonder then that the big motion picture producers of the present day have picked up the wonderful story of "The Still Alarm" and produced it in stupendous form, adding the real fire scenes and real fire engines that were filmed from time to time in anticipation of this gigantic feature. The same clean story that made the stage play such a great triumph has been photographed with the aid of such well-known stars as Thomas E. Santschi, Beatie Eytan, and Fritz Brunette, who have given their art to make this the most wonderful of melodramatic film scenes.

"If realism means anything in the success of a picture," said Manager Klein of Loew's Columbia, "then 'The Still Alarm' will be a sure winner. We were able to secure only four days' run of this film, due to its great demand in other cities."

The Columbia management has extended an invitation to all members of the local Fire Department to attend a private showing of the picture Sunday at noon.

Continuing a series when thrillers have been confined to war subjects for so long, it will be a real relief to view a stirring picture of domestic surroundings. "The Still Alarm" will be shown at Loew's Columbia until Thursday, when the bill changes and Dorothy Gish will be shown in "The Hope Chest."
